As the train was rounding a curve a boulder, which caused the [illegible] leave the track and as it [illegible] broke loose from the rest of the train, rolled down an embankment one hundred and fifty feet, stopping [illegible] several revolutions, and finally landing on its side. Several men got out and lifted the other passengers out of the windows. The car took fire from [illegible] and burned to ashes. The passengers arrived in the city last evening.

Public sympathy will be extended to Senator Ingalls of Kansas in the loss by fire of his residence at Atchison, with all its contents, including his very valuable library. It is stated in our telegraphic dispatches this morning that the loss nearly represents the bulk of his accumulations. Senator Ingalls resided in this city with his family in the summer of 1882, and formed some pleasant acquaintances here who will be deeply pained to learn of his loss.

As was predicted last week General Bragg has been nominated as minister to Mexico to fill the vacancy caused by the death of the former incumbent Judge T. C. Manning of Louisiana. General Bragg has been a warm friend of the administration, and was particularly earnest in the last congress in his advocacy of the president's pension ideas. He is a man of considerable ability and will make a better minister than either of the former incumbents, Manning or Jackson.

The recent city election in Jackson, Mississippi, raises an issue that the republican party ought not to fail to meet with. It is claimed by many that the issue of protection should overshadow all others, but the question of human rights is a far more vital one than that of trade. It [illegible] that for some years republicans had been elected through white and [illegible] mayor of this city. Because of the action of some colored policemen at a time of some quarrel in the city, the democrats determined to elect a straight-out democratic ticket. They [illegible] the following circular [illegible]:

[illegible] the city [illegible] of any one of the [illegible] at the [illegible] and all [illegible] of this city [illegible] by vote or influence to [illegible] on the [illegible] of our city.

The story of what subsequently occurred has been given as follows.

[illegible] Merrill then proposed to [illegible] to have the white men [illegible] election with their [illegible] that no colored vote, and that no [illegible] be placed [illegible] on the police force or run for office. This was declined.

[illegible] on Monday evening held a meeting and [illegible] that, as they were informed [illegible] that the democratic committee of Jackson had invited [illegible] from various parts of the state to be here on election day, to prevent colored voters from participating in the election," that in the interest of peace and harmony the colored people refrain from voting and [illegible] away from the polls.

The election took place today, the result of which [illegible] from [illegible]. The entire democratic ticket, which included a mayor and board of aldermen, was elected.

[illegible] We have always deprecated the raising of the sectional issue when it was not called for. In the case of Secretary Lamar as a candidate for judge of the supreme bench we think the issue [illegible] is a fallacy. He has declared over and over, particularly in his oration on Calhoun, that the amendments to the constitution forever settled the questions which produced and grew out of the war. The attempt to defeat Mr. Lamar's confirmation on the ground that he does not have the right view of constitutional law is not only not fair, but based on dishonesty. Should the opposition to Mr. Lamar be based on this ground they will [illegible] with the efforts to prevent the colored man from voting in the south, a fair ground for objection to his confirmation. If the senate committee of judiciary can connect him with one of the contrabands, he certainly should not be confirmed. It would be very nice for Mr. Lamar just now to express his opinion of the outrage committed by his party in one of the cities in his state.

Chicago Times.

The matter of a court in session in Minneapolis was the cause of quite a row there yesterday afternoon. John Gould and George Hunter were the names of two young fellows who were arraigned on the charge of vagrancy, having just been brought in from Sioux City. They had been seen on the streets considerably during the past week or more, and while there appeared to be no charge against them, it was thought best to look them up. Both youths told their story to Judge Mahoney in a straightforward sort of way, and were allowed to go. Before the court adjourned, however, Gould was known to have received a letter under circumstances [illegible] in New York. He corroborated their story and they were discharged.

These two young fellows are sons of wealthy [illegible] New York families, the [illegible] of Gilsey in the great metropolis. Years ago Gould's father held a high political position in Albany, and the family connections of the mother, two cousins and two daughters moved in the highest social circles of that great city and town. After the death of the father the family returned to New York city, living [illegible] partly with the Gilsey relatives. The boys were [illegible] but they soon developed [illegible] quarrelsome disposition and [illegible] repeatedly, after unsuccessful attempts to [illegible] conventional channels of society, to break away from the paternal hearthstone and wolf. Its contents in arms decided for the latter course of the former [illegible].

Hunter [illegible] Gould's story. He [illegible] of wealthy parentage [illegible] professional [illegible] Buffalo [illegible] by the [illegible] of the [illegible] in New York, [illegible] for years [illegible] and others in the [illegible] profession, [illegible] to the [illegible] of the great [illegible] A year ago he was physically a wreck

His nerves were [illegible] he had dwindled [illegible] a mere shadow of himself. He [illegible] a change and gladly [illegible] to the west. After a [illegible] he [illegible] health.

A couple of months [illegible] returned to Buffalo [illegible] among brown as [illegible] and mounted on [illegible] cowboy costume. There [illegible] during the winter and with the return of [illegible] for their [illegible] to the rear[illegible] of Montana and there is [illegible] that they will [illegible]. They claim to have [illegible] to get some [illegible] but without success. Hunter had [illegible] opportunities [illegible] in the [illegible] of Buffalo, [illegible] Gould's father [illegible] in the [illegible] of Dr. Hamilton [illegible] Gilsey, [illegible] Gilsey [illegible] Gilsey [illegible] Gilsey

There are at present twelve inmates in the county jail.

A number of substantial frame sidewalks are being built along the main streets of Colorado City.

Mr. F. J. Lohr, the money order clerk at the post office, leaves to-day for a brief visit to [illegible], Mexico.

Mr. Sol. Backarach recently made a visit to Central City, where he was formerly engaged in business.

Notice the important change in the advertisement of the Edward Ferris Dry Goods company, by this morning.

Mr. M. McGahey, of the Holdredge Live Stock company of Holdredge, Neb., is registered at The Antlers yesterday.

The water main on the alley between Weber street and Wahsatch avenue, and Bijou and Boulder streets has been completed.

We have in receipt of a copy of the Plainfield Evening News, published at Plainfield, N. J., which claims to be "the Colorado of the east."

Mr. [illegible] A. Master of Denver and John Tomay of Georgetown, members of the state council, Catholic Knights of America, were in the city yesterday.

As soon as the plans and specifications for the new Congregational church are received from New York they will be submitted to the contractors for estimating.

There will be a special rehearsal of the Mozart Choral society this evening at the Congregational church, commencing promptly at half past seven o'clock. All members are urged to be present.

When the workmen who are now building the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe passenger depot have completed the structure, they will go to Pueblo and build the passenger depot at that place.

Mr. C. L. Gillingham, the photographer, has just received a line of new backgrounds for use in his business. It is what is known as "Cambon interior background," and took the first prize at the recent photographers' convention in Chicago.

Colonel Edgar T. Ensign, of this city, state forest commissioner, read a paper before the meeting of the state forestry association at Denver on Wednesday entitled "The Relation of the General and State Governments to the Public Forests."

Several inquiries having been made as to the author of the clever cartoon entitled "Colorado Springs and the Rock Island," which we published last Sunday we would state that it was the work of Mr. A. F. Newell, who is on the staff of Harper's Weekly, and who is our present living in this city.

The city marshal is determined to enforce the ordinance relating to the depositing of hot ashes. Yesterday a prominent business man was arrested and fined $50.00 for violating this ordinance. While the wind was at its height a bucket of hot ashes was found in the rear of his premises which adjoins several frame buildings.

The next attraction at the opera house is the "Cantata of Ruth," to be given on the evening of Friday, January 20th, by our own Mozart Choral society. The parts will be given in costume and our home talent will be assisted by Mrs. Mathilde Ostrander, of Denver, who for several years, was the leading contralto of the Mannie Hall Opera troupe. This performance promises to be the best musical treat ever given in our city.

The contract for erecting the two cottages on the La Veta grounds has been let to W. G. Riddock of this city. Work will be commenced next week, and the buildings will be completed before the drawing for lots takes place. The Green Mountain Falls Town and Improvement company is willing to open up new business lots this season, offering to make liberal grants in property to those who will erect buildings.

The programme for the concert to be given this evening at the Phoenix hotel parlors by the Mozart Choral society is as follows:

[illegible]

At Colorado City [illegible] no new developments in the theft on the dance hall [illegible] Wednesday night. Wesley Hampton, one of the dance hall girls arrested as an accomplice, appeared before Justice Hackett and was fined $25 and costs, which he paid. The hall was opened for a short time on Wednesday evening, but closed early in order to allow the inmates to celebrate their "private" dance at a neighboring saloon.

The town council of Manitou have advertised for sealed bids for the purchase of the old town hall. When bids [illegible] are received the matter will be submitted to the town electors for their approval or rejection at a special election to be held in the early part of next month. In the meantime work on the new town hall will be discontinued, though it is expected that the contract for its erection will be ready to let as soon as the sale of the building now in use is definitely settled.

Mr. W. J. Atkinson who is connected with the M. D. and others in this city, has lately published one of the handsomest and most complete collections of ferns and wild flowers of the Rocky mountain region which has ever been placed before the public. No pains has been spared by the publisher to make the collection a representative and varied one. It has been arranged by Mr. Atkinson in book form in sizes ranging from 9x12 inches to what is known as the standard botanical size 16x18. Not only has the collection been compiled with care, but it is mounted with the most exquisite taste. The outside cover is made of fancy card-board with two very handsome views on the front and back. One is a view of Pike's Peak partially encircled by a stem of "Clematis Alpina," which Mr. Atkinson gathered near the summit of the peak. The view on the back of the cover is a view of Cameron's cone, taken from tunnel No. 4 on the Midland above Manitou. This view is embellished by a representation of a beautiful specimen of the "Zygadenus Nuttalli," gathered by the publisher near Summit Park. The collection properly embraces all the varieties of ferns and wild flowers to be found in this immediate neighborhood. The flowers have been pressed with the greatest care and have been mounted in the most improved manner. The arrangement of the entire collection is a credit to Mr. Atkinson's ability in this direction. These books of ferns and wild flowers will be found on sale at the leading stores of the city. As souvenirs they surpass anything of the kind which has ever been attempted in the west, and will meet with ready sale.
